Welcome
Welcome to the PILnet Global Forum, welcome to PILnet’s 20th anniversary, and welcome back to Budapest, where we started.

In 2017, the Forum opens its doors wide to global efforts in pro bono and public interest law. We hope that this superlative gathering—fired by collaboration, curiosity and learning—will serve to connect you with the best from abroad, and draw attention to courageous efforts right here in Hungary.

But first, a 20th anniversary pause to turn to what brought you, us, and the support of the global legal community to a twenty-year strong foundation: our PILnet team, sung and unsung. They take a cold call coming in from Paraguay, apply the expertise of a PILnet Fellow, and add your firm, NGO, or clinic as a resource to solve the problem. They match their expertise with elbow grease, find venues and reserve rooms, giving up nights and weekend hours. The petty cash gets balanced; they write and write and write, collate reports, and order folders—all as they adapt that idea that worked so well in Almaty and make it better for Lagos.

They mirror the aims of this network. Their intellectual and geographic diversity spur fresh challenges to conventional wisdom, and their connections to advocates like you lead to civil society resources that benefit us all. Real people are our strength, real people make our network work.

In an era where the voice of civil society is being silenced, we are on the ground with our nonprofit and private sector partners to devise solutions that can mean the difference between an NGO fighting against systemic educational discrimination and having its operations shut down. This is our calling. Let’s start the next twenty years right now, answering that call, together.

The PILnet Global Forum in Budapest is the fitting place to do just that. This is the event to discover how video can be used as evidence in the MENA region, learn more about the blossoming pro bono networks in Africa, and plug into trends from across Asia. Here, you will have the opportunity to dissect our and others’ mistakes and incorporate that wisdom into your own planning. Sharpen your negotiation skills, connect at the Global Café, and apply yourself to matters that need your attention now. Today.

It is with sincere enthusiasm and pride, therefore, that we personally welcome you to PILnet’s Global Forum in Budapest. Alongside the PILnet team, we are there with you, energized and ready to build a more resilient civil society.

About PILnet

PILnet is a global non-profit organization that connects the legal profession around the world to ensure that law serves the interests of all. PILnet works to engage, empower, and enable those who use law to represent the public interest. With offices in Beijing, Budapest, London, Hong Kong, Moscow, and New York, and with the support of partner law firms and civil society organizations, PILnet asserts the right and responsibility of lawyers everywhere to stand up for the public interest.

Over the past 20 years, PILnet has developed a network that spans the public and private sides of the profession. Through strategic convenings, trainings, and engagements, PILnet bridges divisions to ensure that the full range of legal expertise and tools are mobilized to manage risks that threaten the public interest. In doing so, PILnet seeks to unlock law’s full potential to protect interests equally and to work for all, especially the most vulnerable.

PILnet’s Achievements

In the two decades since PILnet opened its doors, as “The Public Interest Law Initiative in Transitional Societies,” we have advanced a potent movement that weaves together public interest advocates across the globe. We have evolved, but our founding mission remains as germane today as when we took on our first matter, welcomed our first fellow, and held our first forum: to promote the use of law as a tool to serve the interests of the whole of society rather than the powerful few. This underlying spirit fuels our projects to this day. It is infused in all the work we do, including these 2017 highlights.

PILnet’s Fellows Program has always been a pillar of our organization. We have welcomed over 140 human rights advocates, enabling them to learn from the best in the legal world, expand their professional networks, and use this experience to work more effectively in their home countries. That they have. PILnet Fellows lead social movements and advance human rights from China to Brazil, Russia to Nigeria, and Hungary to Egypt. This spring saw the launch of our redesigned Fellows Program, allowing five top-notch young public interest lawyers to train and work closely alongside PILnet staff. As PILnet grows and refines its mission, we continue to learn together by building a new kind of public interest law movement, and preparing a new generation of legal leaders to change the way advocacy is done.

As with the Fellows Program, PILnet strives to create, refresh, and adapt advocacy tools to the changing needs of civil society. PILnet’s Middle East & North Africa Program is developing tools for sharper litigation in the region. Partnering with WITNESS and a major international law firm, it has produced a seminal English and Arabic guide to using video as evidence in justice and accountability that is being launched at this Forum.

Practical and often pathbreaking legal research is a PILnet hallmark. In Hong Kong, we have kindled a pro bono movement that is already helping to direct pro bono services to those most in need. In partnership with DLA Piper, PILnet exhaustively researched the gaps in legal services there, resulting in the launch of a report, THIS WAY—Finding Community Legal Assistance in Hong Kong in May 2017.

Indeed, this priority—opening the gates of justice to people most in need—is at the foundation of our pro bono programs.

In Hungary, children have long been excluded from the justice system. PILnet 2007 Fellow, Szilvia Gyurkó, made great strides in 2017 to change that, when she introduced a dedicated child-rights clearinghouse, the Hintalovon Foundation. PILnet secured the long-term support of four leading international law firms who will deliver fast-response legal assistance, advise on procedural rules, and provide legal analysis in sexual exploitation cases.

Helping the trans community assert their rights has been at the heart of several PILnet brokered collaborations this year. We partnered with Transgender Europe and White & Case on a “Claim
Your Rights” guide, due to be published later this year, and pulled together a pan-European pool of law firms to provide local analysis of law concerning trans-related health insurance coverage.

Our support for trans rights spans continents. In China, where PILnet has nurtured a growing pro bono movement, our partners aided in a standout victory: an employment discrimination lawsuit was filed on behalf of a transgendered man—the first such case ever accepted by a Chinese court.

The fight for environmental justice calls for bold approaches and courageous advocates. Client Earth checks all boxes, and when they sought extra support to challenge the European Commission’s provision of permits for the use of chemical substances, PILnet was on hand to connect them with the right representation. Their case before the General Court of the EU is due to be heard in early 2018.

As we cultivate connections and supply aid to action, we continue to introduce the power of pro bono to ripe new environments. PILnet has actively helped to distill the pro bono interests of lawyers in former republics of the Soviet Union, and aims to bridge formerly disparate public interest law efforts across the region.

While all of our pro bono programs endeavor to support nonprofit efforts in defense of human rights, there is one issue—the epidemic of shrinking civil society space—that is definitive. During this past year, NGOs have struggled against a more onerous and hostile regulatory environment. It is a global trend: The enthusiastic embrace of democracy of the 1990s is being eclipsed by a sense of disenfranchisement and rejection of the rule of law. But PILnet began in the wake of repression, and is, with you, here to see us through the present environment. This is why we do this work.

Welcome from the Forum Host Committee

On behalf of the Forum Host Committee, it is our privilege to welcome you to Budapest for the 2017 PILnet Global Forum.

We have little doubt that you will enjoy your time here, at an unparalleled convening of pro bono and public interest advocates, in our city where classical grandeur stands as a backdrop for a vibrant, urban culture.

Hungarian lawyers have a distinguished history of providing free, selfless legal services for good causes. We proffer that, indeed, pro bono projects are the best part of being a lawyer. For two decades solid, the Hungarian legal profession has worked hand-in-hand with PILnet to connect the best resources of our profession with NGOs that can amplify our work and bring it to the neighbourhoods, streets, and homes of our shared communities. Members of the bar regularly go beyond expectations to donate their know-how, in recognition of the privilege that our vocation bestows. Having been among the first legal communities to embrace a culture of pro bono in Central and Eastern Europe, we are committed to a future of the same and better.

Our time and expertise has always been in high demand, and we have stood to meet that call, but the vulnerable among us still need our help. The past decade has seen challenges to academic freedom, media freedom, access to information, the right to property, and judicial independence in many jurisdictions. The marginalization of already disadvantaged populations is at risk of becoming the new norm across the world. We charge ourselves, then, to apply our legal skills to projects that strengthen civil society and make for healthy democratic institutions. As lawyers and individuals, we espouse the principles of equality, the rule of law, social solidarity and, above all, justice.

We look forward to meeting each of you at the Forum, and taking the time to share interests, successes, questions, and plans. Like you, we remain open to new ideas, and envisage that connections made at the 2017 Global Forum in Budapest will serve as the catalyst to turn those theories into action.

With our sincere and enthusiastic welcome,

ABOUT THIS PICTURE

Syrian activist Mustafa Karali captured this shot of a young Syrian advocate, displaced by the war, working from his laptop, warming under a blanket. Karali—trained by WITNESS, a leader in the global movement using video to effect positive human rights change—worked with the late journalist James Foley, a reporter who was deeply invested in promoting the work of activists, spotted the need for training and pushed to make it happen. As Foley’s translator and mentee, Karali began to develop mastery of photography as an art form and visual voice. Today, Karali produces images set in his Syrian homeland.

September 2017. Rohingya refugees from Rakhine State, Myanmar, arrive in Bangladesh. Rohingya are thought to be one of the most persecuted populations in the world. Due to ongoing violence and severely restricted rights in Myanmar, thousands of Rohingya have fled to neighboring countries over the past year. In Southeast Asia, particularly, human traffickers often prey upon their vulnerability.

09:00–16:00 In Just Societies Law Works for All: Exploring New Areas for Public-Private Collaboration
PILnet Strategic Convening—By invitation only

This day-long session aims to test the emerging concept in public interest law of focusing on proactive “risk management,” rather than reactive legal responses to injury. What kind of legal resources and concepts can be employed to strengthen civil society and increase the impact of public interest lawyering? What might this look like in practice?

Location: Central European University

What Works and What Doesn’t? Workshop on Pro Bono and Advocacy Efforts in Eurasia

Sponsored by Visegrad Fund

Workshop

PILnet convenes this event to share and debate organizational strategies that aim to combine pro bono resources with advocacy efforts in countries from Poland to Kazakhstan. Participants will debate and exchange experiences with current challenges of involving commercial law firms and/or individual lawyers in human rights advocacy efforts, and in the development of home-grown pro bono projects. The workshop will take place thanks to the financial support of the International Visegrad Fund and to the in-kind support of the Open Society Archives.

What Are the Impacts of Strategic Human Rights Litigation?
Panel Discussion hosted by the Open Society Justice Initiative

“What transpires outside the courthouse can at least be as powerful as what happens at the bench.”
—Adriána Zimová, Strategic Litigation Impacts: Roma School Desegregation

This panel will launch preliminary findings of a new report reflecting the complex results of the Open Society Justice Initiative’s multi-year inquiry into the impacts of strategic human rights litigation around the world. The inquiry draws on four thematic studies and hundreds of interviews in eleven countries in a variety of rights areas—Roma school desegregation, indigenous peoples’ land rights, equal access to quality education and torture in custody. It also taps insights from the Justice Initiative’s own ten years practicing and instructing on strategic litigation. The unique approach of these reports is their dissection of concrete examples from the perspective of the social-change agent in order to better understand the effects and impacts of strategic litigation.

The Use of Video as Evidence in Human Rights Cases: Lessons Learned from the Middle East & North Africa

Panel Discussion

The Middle East and North Africa (“MENA”) region presents a unique and burgeoning environment for the use of video evidence. In particular, after what some dubbed the Twitter or Facebook Revolution in 2011, combined with a consistent growth in mobile and smartphone use throughout the region, the number of people who could document, and are currently doing so, evidence of crimes and human rights violations has skyrocketed. In the MENA region, however, as in other parts of the world where rule of law and justice systems lack in accountability and effectiveness, it cannot be assumed that increased documentation of human rights violations will lead to more justice. Join us for a discussion on how video evidence has been used in some countries in the region and lessons learned from this introductory examination.

Legal Empowerment & Community Lawyering

Training

The UN estimates that four billion people worldwide lack basic access to justice. People can be driven from their land, denied essential services, excluded from society, and intimidated by violence. There are almost always laws on the books that would protect them, but they’ve often never heard of those laws, let alone had a shot at enforcing them. Legal empowerment is an approach that aims to turn law from an abstraction or a threat into something that every person can understand, use, and shape. Community paralegals can be a powerful force for legal empowerment, demystifying law and helping people find solutions to injustices they face. Vivek Maru, founder of Namati, will introduce the theory and practice of legal empowerment. Through human stories and concrete case studies, participants will explore the practical methods by which lawyers and paralegals can place the power of law in the hands of people.

How can international disputes be resolved in the courtroom rather than on the battlefield? ALL RISE brings this complex question into sharp and personalized focus through the journeys of seven passionate students of law from India, Israel, Jamaica, Palestine, Russia, Singapore, and Uganda to compete in the world championships in Washington, DC, of the Philip C. Jessup International Law Moot Court Competition (the “Jessup”), the world’s largest simulated court competition. The “court” is the International Court of Justice (“ICJ”), the judicial arm of the United Nations. Against this backdrop, this moving film lays bare the struggles, triumphs and transformations they experience alone and together.

Managing Risk Like a Corporate Counsel

Panel Discussion

Go behind closed company doors to explore how general counsel manage risk for their employers, and discover what NGOs might learn from a private industry approach. In building a marketing strategy, making a big hire or implementing a program in a new political environment, corporate counsel are there to examine the institutional risk—and expose unvarnished realities. Is it time for NGOs to adapt the similar risk analysis to programs, and what might be the outcome?

Trends in Public Interest Lawyering in Asia
Panel Discussion

Public interest lawyering and pro bono has long been established in Asia. However, “structured pro bono” supported by law firms and bar associations is relatively new and public interest lawyers continue to face a range of challenges. This panel will share the latest developments in public interest law and pro bono in several jurisdictions across Asia, explore exciting trends of cross-border pro bono lawyer networks, and identify challenges facing the development of structured pro bono in jurisdictions with rich public interest lawyering but little private sector participation.

Freedom of Expression

Panel Discussion

The rise of social media, blogs and other online platforms has given individuals a public forum for expressing their ideas and opinions. Increasingly, people are also using such online platforms as channels for protest and holding elected officials accountable. Dentons’ Warsaw litigation team has defended five individuals in separate freedom of speech cases—two bloggers, a journalist, a university professor, and a poet who altered the words of the national anthem to voice support for refugees. We will tell these pro bono stories and discuss the legal and political challenges at the heart of the new “online resistance.”

Legal Empowerment for Refugee Entrepreneurs in Europe Workshop
Economic participation is critical for refugee integration, but refugees in Europe consistently have low rates of employment due to language barriers, unrecognized qualifications, cultural bias and other barriers. In this context entrepreneurship (self-employment) can be a fast-track to self-sufficiency, and the provision of timely, expert legal advice is critical to navigating the legal requirements of being a business-owner. Join this session to hear how lawyers can plug in their expertise to support refugee entrepreneurs and to help shape a collaborative pro bono initiative on this topic in Europe.

Global Partnerships with NGOs and IGOs

Workshop

In recent years international law firms have developed institutional client relationships with multinational corporations. Firms provide legal services across all aspects and all geographies of a corporation’s business. There is increasing evidence that this model of client service is making its way into the pro bono sector. In this session we will talk about the relationships between international law firms, non-profits and organizations. The relationships between DLA Piper and UNICEF on the one hand, and Dentons and CARE on the other, will be profiled. We will explore the structure of such relationships, the factors leading to success, and the challenges that can arise.

Measuring Progress Towards the Sustainable Development Goals

Panel Discussion

The era of the sustainable development goals (SDGs) is well upon us. With just 13 years to achieve 17 enormously varied and ambitious targets, from ending malnutrition to ensuring access to safe and affordable housing for all, what progress has been made so far and how is that progress being measured? This panel will highlight stories from the private sector about what indicators they’re applying to measure their work towards achieving the SDGs.

Evaluating Pro Bono: Practical Examples of How It Can Be Done
Training
The aim of this session is to present several different models of evaluating pro bono projects. DLA Piper has made a significant effort over the past years to increase monitoring and evaluation within its pro bono practice. This has included externally or internally reviewing multi-year pro bono partnerships, reviewing the follow-up and subsequent use of pro bono research output, and reviewing the impact of legal clinics for individuals. This session will present some of these models for pro bono evaluation.

Strategic Cross-Border Approaches to Pro Bono in Africa for Maximum Impact

Panel Discussion

What are the pro bono strategies in a context of almost unlimited need and very limited capacity? With few exceptions, pro bono in Africa is at a nascent stage, with firms undertaking projects in a largely ad hoc manner, and a lack of broad consensus on the nature of pro bono and its role in the legal profession and society. A number of firms and organizations seek to change this; to make pro bono an integral part of practice and a force for improved justice. This workshop will look at the current state of pro bono in Africa, what firms and organizations that work across the continent are doing to promote pro bono practice, and what measures they are taking to ensure sustained impact. Participants will explore the opportunities and benefits of cross-regional and sector coordination and collaboration, and seek to establish guidelines for strategic pro bono practice to maximize progress on rights and development.

Rapid Response Lawyering for Refugees in Times of Crisis

Workshop

Assisting refugees in periods of crisis requires creative approaches to pro bono, rapid mobilization, and movement lawyering. This workshop will explore best practices for identifying appropriate initiatives, training and coordinating lawyers, and sustaining interest and engagement. As one of the leading organizations to coordinate pro bono lawyers at airports after the January 2017 immigration executive order in the United States, the International Refugee Assistance Project (IRAP) and partners will share their expertise with the global pro bono community.

Pro Bono, Rule of Law and International Development
Panel Discussion
This discussion, led by UK Rule of Law Expertise (ROLE UK), law firms and NGO representatives, is meant for participants interested in strengthening the relevance and impact of their pro bono work in developing countries. The
The topics covered will include: the political nature of law and development and implications for pro bono work; monitoring the contribution of pro bono work to the Sustainable Development Goals; and developing effective partnerships with NGOs and governments. Panelists will share their experiences of adapting and applying tools and techniques used within the development sector, and participants will be encouraged to share their own views and approaches.

Strengthening Civil Society to Campaign for Change

Training

The closing space for civil society means that campaigners are under increasing pressure to run campaigns for social change that are not only politically effective but also run in compliance with the complex framework of laws that affect campaigning activities. Legal obstacles can cause campaigners to become confused and indecisive when making important campaigning decisions and this can lead to paralysis amongst civil society organizations. Through practical examples, this session will demonstrate the essential ways in which pro bono lawyers can empower campaigners to navigate legal issues such as lobbying, defamation, public protests, social media, data protection, “hacktivism” and shareholder activism, and help them run smooth, confident campaigns for a free and fair society.

PILnet’s 20th Anniversary & Global Pro Bono Awards

In recognition of PILnet’s 20th Anniversary, nominations this year were welcome from across the globe. PILnet’s Award for Exemplary Partnership in the Public Interest is awarded to the best pro bono legal project undertaken as a collaboration between an NGO and a law firm, with an impact felt in more than one country. The Award for Local Pro Bono Impact honors the best innovative pro bono legal project undertaken by a law firm and/or NGO, or the wider pro bono community. This year, in honor of returning to PILnet’s roots in Budapest, PILnet and the Budapest and Hungarian Bar Associations will present the Awards for Hungarian Lawyers for the Public Good, which recognize Hungarian public interest lawyers in two categories: Pro Bono Lawyer of the Year, and Pro Bono Law Office of the Year. The Publico Award recognizes legal professionals with an extraordinary, passionate and long-standing commitment to service for the public good.

With the exception of the Publico Award, all winners are selected by a jury independent of PILnet and PILnet staff. They will be announced on 18 October, at PILnet’s 20th Anniversary & Global Pro Bono Awards Dinner.

The 2017 Publico Award

“To defend myself, I must restrain power with freedom, even if the temporary beneficiaries are the enemies of freedom.”

—Aryeh Neier

These words have defined a storied career as a determined defender of human rights, and of the proposition that the law only works properly when it is applied equally. As a mentor, an activist and a funder, he has made a profound, durable impact on human rights around the world. For his work with the American Civil Liberties Union, Human Rights Watch, the League for Industrial Democracy, PILnet awards the 2017 Publico Award to Aryeh Neier.

SHORTLISTED PROJECTS

Simmons & Simmons and Legal Response Initiative

Simmons & Simmons has played a crucial role in utilizing the skillsets of its lawyers on a pro bono basis to provide justice in the areas of climate law and climate justice. The Legal Response Initiative (LRI), founded in 2009 in the lead-up to the UN Copenhagen Climate Conference, provides free legal support to poor and climate-vulnerable developing countries as well as civil society observer organizations in the context of UN Climate Change negotiations. It does so through a network of lawyers from various law firms, barrister chambers and universities in different jurisdictions. Since July 2016, Simmons & Simmons has made a significant contribution to post-Paris Agreement legislation work carried out by the LRI, specifically in advising those countries seeking assistance with the implementation of the Agreement after its coming into effect in December 2016. This included providing expert legal advice to least developed countries both on the ground at UN Climate Conferences, and remotely. Since its founding, the LRI has been a critical part of the Simmons & Simmons’ pro bono strategy, allowing lawyers to support developing countries within a legal framework to achieve sustainable development. The firm plans on continuing its support of the LRI in its endeavors and hopes to sustain further work with climate change legislation, allowing its lawyers to benefit from a partnership that leads to tangible change.

Arnold & Porter Kaye Scholer and Southern African AIDS Trust

Arnold & Porter Kaye Scholer (APKS) partnered with the Southern African AIDS Trust (SAT) to examine legislative and policy-based barriers of access to sexual and reproductive health services encountered by young people in Sub-Saharan Africa, a key driver of the increase in HIV prevalence amongst the region’s youth. The project examined whether current ages of consent to sex are appropriate or discriminatory based on gender, sexual orientation or marital status, and what other factors affect access to sexual and reproductive health services. The first stage of the project, led by APKS, aimed to understand the legal position in 22 jurisdictions, both in Sub-Saharan Africa and beyond. The next stage will be to identify where law and policy reform is necessary and suitable, and to assist local activists in bringing about that reform. The results of the review were discussed at a convening in Johannesburg in October 2016, which was attended by representatives from SAT, APKS, and civil society organizations including UNICEF, the UN Development Programme and UNAIDS. Participants also included several Sub-Saharan African governments as well as local counsel from Sweden, Brazil and Portugal. APKS used its healthcare regulatory expertise to formulate the review questions for local counsel in 21 jurisdictions, from Botswana to Ukraine. The firm also provided input on the position in England and Wales. A team of five APKS lawyers, headed by one of the firm’s partners, Ian Dodds-Smith, has contributed more than 500 hours to the project so far. They have been working with SAT and local counsel since the project’s inception in early 2016.
DLA Piper and UNICEF

In 2013 DLA Piper and UNICEF UK launched an international partnership to protect children coming into contact with the law in Bangladesh. Between 2016 and 2017 they embedded the relationship, supporting UNICEF UK through pro bono projects globally, including in the Gambia, Mexico and the Netherlands. During that period, in addition to cross-jurisdictional pieces of work, DLA Piper financially supported UNICEF’s Justice for Children work in Bangladesh, supporting the government in the implementation of the 2013 Children’s Act and developing a more child-friendly justice system for Bangladesh’s 65 million children. In Gambia, with DLA Piper’s assistance, UNICEF The Gambia significantly increased their technical assistance to the government on child marriage, affecting 50% of women under 18, and laws relating to female genital mutilation/cutting, affecting 75% of women, ensuring these laws met child rights standards. In Mexico, DLA Piper lawyers collaborated with UNICEF’s Child Rights and Business team by conducting a national review on children’s rights and business. This has enabled UNICEF to advocate for greater corporate understanding and awareness of children’s rights. The review will be considered in the Mexican government’s forthcoming National Action Plan on Business and Human Rights. UNICEF UK is a key partner in DLA Piper’s pro bono focus on child rights, rule of law and displaced people. Between 2016 and 2017, 150 lawyers from DLA Piper offices in 27 countries provided around 3600 pro bono hours, working across 37 jurisdictions.

Regional Bar Council in Warsaw and Civil Society Organizations

Lawyers from the Regional Bar Council in Warsaw, Helsinki Foundation for Human Rights (HFHR), Association for Legal Intervention (ALI), Human Constanta, and the Foundation for International Humanitarian Aid (FIAH), recently collaborated to provide direct legal assistance to Chechen families applying for asylum at the Belarusian-Polish border in Terespol, Poland. Thousands of Chechen, Tajiki and Georgian asylum seekers are being summarily refused a right to claim international protection by Polish authorities, an upward trend since 2016, prompting HFHR and ALI to investigate. Both organizations issued several alarming reports indicating that the Border Guard may have inappropriately applied international protection procedures. On one occasion, a total of 14 lawyers went to the border and attempted to assist 51 asylum seekers. They were accompanied by several NGO representatives, translators and journalists. Human Constanta identified families requiring legal assistance beforehand, while FIAH provided onsite psychological assistance. Unfortunately, the Border Guard prevented all of the lawyers, except for one, from consulting with clients and, ultimately, all of the asylum applications were refused. Although an appeal against the refusals proved unsuccessful, the project established greater cooperation between NGOs and lawyers, and drew attention to the plight of asylum seekers and the misapplication of international protection procedures by Polish border officials. A team of lawyers is currently preparing complaints to the Voivodeship Administrative Court in Warsaw, and seeking protection for two of the families from the European Court of Human Rights (ECHR). The ECHR has adopted certain interim measures and given notice to the Border Guard in Terespol to comply, but the Court’s judgment has not been respected, prompting another denunciation to the ECHR of various human rights violations.

SHORTLISTED PROJECTS

Comisión de Trabajo Pro Bono e Interés Público de Buenos Aires Bar Association and Centro de Acceso a la Justicia/Argentinian Ministry of Justice and Human Rights

In this continuing project, member firms of the Comisión de Trabajo Pro Bono in Buenos Aires provided pro bono assistance to the Argentinian Ministry of Justice and Human Rights. Designed to facilitate access to justice for some of the city’s most vulnerable citizens, the project provided legal representation in court to residents of two “villas”, or shanty towns. The Ministry of Justice and Human Rights has a network of “Centros de Acceso a la Justicia” that provide basic legal assistance to underprivileged communities in which they are based, although their lawyers do not usually represent residents in court. Each “Centro” is based in the center of the villa and has a team of lawyers as well as a psychologist and a social worker who come in close contact with the residents and assist in the interaction between the pro bono client and his or her lawyer. Through an agreement with the Comisión de Trabajo Pro Bono e Interés Público (part of the Buenos Aires City Law Association), the Comisión’s 20 member law firms mobilized to advise and represent residents of the villas on disability rights, access to health care programs and non-contributory pensions, and immigration and documentation issues. They also provided legal advice to victims of domestic or gender violence. So far, law firms have undertaken almost 30 legal cases and the program is being expanded to include other Centros in villas throughout the Buenos Aires metropole.

Turcan Cazac Law Firm, Moldova

Turcan Cazac has been shortlisted for PILnet’s Award for Local Pro Bono Impact for developing Moldova’s first online legal empowerment platform, yAvo.md. The platform, which was launched in July 2016, offers free domestic legal advice to Moldovans. It aims to close the justice gap between legal need and access to legal information in a country where legal services are expensive, pro bono is not a norm among legal professionals and legal aid for civil cases is only developing. The platform has been lauded for its simplicity—it allows any Moldovan, whether small business owner, single mother, rural community member, or citizen working abroad, to ask a legal question without first having to go through a lengthy registration process. Accounts are created automatically and enable users to ask follow-up questions as needed. The most popular legal questions relate to consumer agreements, employment, housing, family law, road traffic law, and small business matters. About 140 Moldovan advocates, trainees, notaries, in-house lawyers, paralegals and law students donate their expertise to the public through the platform, which has close to 11,000 Facebook followers. The platform also has an easy-to-use interface which is available in 3 languages: Romanian (Moldovan), Russian and English. Over the last two years, lawyers from Turcan Cazac have contributed approximately 1,000 pro bono hours towards developing the platform, and provided over 600 free legal answers to the public via the platform. Other legal practitioners and students have voluntarily contributed over 3,000 free legal answers. To compare, the Moldovan National Legal Aid Office has reported providing legal aid guidance to over 9,000 individuals via its network of 550 participating advocates, paralegals and law students.
Justice Connect Australia and 55 law firms

Part of Justice Connect’s not-for-profit law service, the NFP Law Information Hub (www.nfplaw.org.au), launched in 2009, is a collaboration between 55 Australian law firms, in-house counsel and Justice Connect. It has transformed the delivery of legal services to NGOs in Australia and is accessed hundreds of thousands of times each year. The Hub is a free online platform providing a comprehensive set of 260+ resources covering 80 legal topics across the life cycle of an NGO, including all relevant Australian Federal and State laws. The platform was built by legal experts with the technical support of Neota Logic, an international legal artificial intelligence software firm. The Hub is a logical, user-friendly system that NGOs of all levels of sophistication can use and access easily. It features text-based and multi-media resources, as well as web-based apps which guide people through relevant questions, provide a bespoke report with tips or further reading, and even help frame a conversation with a lawyer. This project is an innovative pro bono partnership that has maximized the impact of pro bono resources available to NGOs and has enabled law firms to direct their pro bono resources more strategically, now reserving these for the genuinely difficult legal problems that an NGO may face, while simpler questions are directly addressed on the Hub. It has provided a sustainable model that can be replicated in various jurisdictions around the world.

Gómez-Acebo & Pombo and Fundación Fernando Pombo

Fundación Fernando Pombo’s (FFP) project has been shortlisted in recognition of its work with vulnerable groups in Spain, who also suffer from rare, chronic, serious or impeding diseases. The nature of their diseases, including mental health issues, coupled with a pre-existing vulnerability due to poverty, homelessness, gender violence or forced migration, make these groups highly susceptible to a lack of access to healthcare, maltreatment, social exclusion, and hate crimes. FFP, in collaboration with international law firm Gomez-Acebo & Pombo, identified the legal needs of these groups and provided them with pro bono assistance. The project also involved legal clinics, lectures and discussion sessions, both nationally and internationally, to draw attention to the plight of doubly vulnerable groups, and explore how, through law, the Spanish health care system could be improved to better protect them. Notable cases involved obtaining access to medical treatment for minors with spinal bifida and drug approvals for rare diseases. The project involved 90 attorneys, over 3000 students from Spanish law school pro bono clinics, several social institutions, and the Spanish government. To date, the project has assisted 18 NGOs and provided direct legal support in over sixty cases in Melilla, a city facing severe health care challenges with forced migrants. In addition, FFP published three practical guides for lawyers who advise doubly vulnerable patients—a first in Spain. Two of the guides, dealing with the health of homeless and gender violence victims, have been included in the Spanish National Plan and in the government’s gender violence strategy. The project was recognized for social responsibility in the legal profession in the 2014 Financial Times Innovative Lawyers Report–Europe and shortlisted for the IBA Pro Bono Awards in 2016 and 2017. The Spanish Federation for Rare Diseases and the Queen of Spain have recognized the project’s commitment to the promotion and defense of the rights of the vulnerable.
Norton Rose Fulbright South Africa and Council for the Advancement of the South African Constitution

Norton Rose Fulbright’s South African office has provided pro bono assistance to the Council for the Advancement of the South African Constitution in a matter regarding the provision of access to justice to South Africans. Specifically, they advocated for victims affected by the international crimes of genocide, crimes against humanity, war crimes, and crimes of aggression. This was in response to the South African Cabinet’s unilateral decision to withdraw from the Rome Statute, which provided protection and held accountable those responsible for such crimes, in October 2016. South Africa was also strongly criticized by the International Criminal Court after its failure to arrest Sudan’s President, Omar Hassan al-Bashir, when he visited Johannesburg in 2015. Al-Bashir was previously accused of crimes of genocide and war crimes against his people. Norton Rose Fulbright approached the High Court as a co-applicant to challenge the Cabinet’s decision. A team of 15 attorneys and support staff from the firm as well as four trained advocates worked on this matter on a pro bono basis. In December 2016, it was argued by the High Court that the decision to withdraw from the Statute was to be made by the South African Parliament, and was revoked immediately. The Parliament then tabled a Bill invoking the same decision, but Norton Rose Fulbright lawyers worked to have it withdrawn through written submissions. There have been no further efforts by the South African government to withdraw from the Rome Statute and the ICC to this date. This case highlights the importance and effectiveness of the separation of powers in holding arms of government accountable in a democratic society and indicates how the courts can be used as a line of defense in cases of misgovernance.

Merged Nomination:
University House Legal Aid Center and London-based firms

A group of London-based firms partnering with the University House Legal Aid Advice Centre in East London were nominated for their collaborative projects to assist low income and vulnerable populations in two of the City’s poorest boroughs.

Firms including Dechert; Reed Smith; Ropes & Gray; Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom; Slaughter and May; and White & Case worked on an advocacy-based pro bono program to help individuals fairly access disability benefits provisions. Following a series of welfare reforms in the UK, individuals who are unable to work due to mental and physical disabilities, long term illness or mental health issues, were faced with abrupt termination of regular benefit payments after reassessment by the Department for Work and Pensions. When some of these assessments were appealed with no legal representation, lowering the chances of success, University House viewed this as a disability discrimination issue and responded by setting up a pro bono advocacy scheme for City lawyers to assist in closing the gap. Volunteers from each firm, drawn from a wide range of practice groups at all levels of qualification, have been trained to represent University House clients at tribunal hearings. Participating firms have taken on 43 appeals since July 2016, with an 81.5% success rate.

The Family Law and Domestic Violence Advice Clinic, launched in the London Borough of Tower Hamlets in February 2016, assists victims of domestic violence by providing free legal advice during a weekly drop-in clinic. This is collectively run by Gibson Dunn; Reed Smith; Ropes & Gray; Shearman & Sterling; Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom; and Travers Smith, in conjunction with the University House Legal Advice Centre. The clinic was set up by a task force that operates under the umbrella of the Collaborative Plan for Pro Bono in the UK. University House serves as a physical base for the Clinic as well as a source of mentoring and supervision for volunteers and, importantly, a connection with the local community. This collaborative approach allows for sufficient resources to be made available to the full range of follow-up support and casework needed, including emergency and long-term assistance.

Special Mention: UK Collaborative Plan for Pro Bono and Dentons Warsaw

North Kensington Law Centre and the survivors of the Grenfell Tower fire

After the devastating fire that ripped through Grenfell Tower, a residential block in London, Rebecca Greenhalgh (Ashurst) and Felicity Kirk (Ropes & Gray) coordinated an immediate London-wide pro bono response to support the North Kensington Law Centre (a community advice organization based at the foot of the Tower) in its work to support residents affected by the tragedy, setting up advice services, clinics and support networks for those affected. Rebecca and Felicity coordinated with the Law Centre to ascertain where there was a need for assistance, what the most practical pro bono interventions could be, and how to access the most vulnerable. They then recruited a network of London lawyers from more than 30 law firms through the UK Collaborative Plan for Pro Bono to assist the Law Centre in its work with Grenfell survivors, including two lawyers from Allen & Overy who are now working to develop a long-term strategic response.

Dentons Warsaw Office and individuals in freedom of speech cases

Dentons represented five individuals facing criminal proceedings relating to their freedom of speech. These included two bloggers, a university professor, and a poet who altered the Polish national anthem in support of refugees. Dentons’ support of these individuals was covered by the Polish media and has created a discussion and a hope for greater involvement in pro bono among Polish firms. It has also sparked a crucial dialogue on the country’s media laws and freedom of expression in general. This work was part of a broader initiative by Dentons’ Warsaw office to establish a strategic litigation team in 2016, with the objective of providing pro bono legal advice in freedom of speech cases.

THIS WAY—Finding Community Legal Assistance in Hong Kong

www.pilnet.org
What Is a Pro Bono Clearinghouse?

Pro bono clearinghouses broker free advice from legal professionals for nonprofit organizations in need of legal assistance.

What are the specific goals and principles of a clearinghouse?

- to improve access to justice
- to provide legal advice to all, regardless of race, religion, politics, background or creed
- to promote the rule of law and the use of law as a tool to achieve social justice
- to act independently of governments, funders, law firms, NGOs and other groups
- to raise awareness of pro bono work
- to educate people about the law and development

PILnet’s pro bono clearinghouses

PILnet’s pro bono clearinghouses work with independent nonprofit organizations to connect them to services through its global legal network. They do this by helping NGOs pinpoint their legal needs, and then match these requirements with pro bono lawyers. This expertise is not limited by jurisdiction or region, as PILnet’s clearinghouses can draw on a host of legal skills from all over the world.

What kind of pro bono support is available?

Pro bono support comes in many forms and usually takes place outside of the courtroom. Pro bono projects fall into four broad categories: legal advice and advocacy; legal research; legal analysis and drafting; and legal training. NGOs might require help with a project which combines some, or all of these elements.

How do PILnet’s pro bono clearinghouses work in practice?

In order to ensure the legitimacy of our listings, we begin by having one of our in-house legal officers screen each nonprofit’s credentials. Once approved, PILnet individually works with the nonprofit to help define its legal needs. This cooperation culminates in the creation of a matter, which is a short summary describing the NGO, the request and any other pertinent information, such as the jurisdiction and the timeframe. The matters are pooled into a monthly listing that goes out to all of the cooperating law firms.

Joining is easy. If firms or individual lawyers want to receive the list of pro bono opportunities, PILnet will simply add your email address to the distribution list. There is no membership or other fee required. The list is open to all lawyers and law firms who want to review opportunities.

For more information on clearinghouses, you are welcome to consult the online Pro Bono Clearinghouse Manual, developed by PILnet in collaboration with Advocates for International Development (A4ID): www.probonomanual.org.

Which One of These People Needs a Good Lawyer?

The Jones Day Foundation recognizes the value of PILnet: The Global Network for Public Interest Law and applauds PILnet’s commitment to furthering the rule of law around the world in an effort to advance civil rights, civil liberties, women’s rights, and environmental protection. PILnet’s work towards these goals, as well as its advocacy against poverty, is commendable.
PILnet plays a key role in bringing together the corporate and civil sectors to promote access to justice.

We are proud to work with them to make this a reality.

We applaud your tremendous contributions to building support for pro bono across the continent.
Reed Smith is a global relationship law firm with more that 1,700 lawyers in 27 offices throughout Europe, the Middle East, Asia and the United States.

Reed Smith is a proud charter signatory to the Pro Bono Institute’s Law Firm Pro Bono Challenge, devoting more than three percent of our billable time to pro bono work. We are also a founding member of Advocates for International Development and the collaborative plan for pro bono in the UK, as well as a signatory to the United Kingdom Joint Protocol for Pro Bono Work.

In 2016 we did over 80,000 hours of pro bono work. If those hours were billed at our normal rates the value would be more than US $40 million. 984 lawyers across our offices took part in pro bono.
We are proud to support the 2017 PILnet Global Forum in bringing together supporters to engage and collaborate to address critical issues of social justice.

WHAT WE DO

TrustLaw is the Thomson Reuters Foundation’s global pro bono legal programme.

We connect the world’s leading legal teams with high-impact NGOs and social enterprises working to create social change.

We help produce groundbreaking legal research and offer innovative training courses worldwide.

WHY TRUSTLAW

Our free legal service enables NGOs and social enterprises to streamline operations, expand into new countries and scale their impact. This allows them to focus on their mission without spending valuable resources on their legal needs.

Our research programmes are powerful advocacy tools that help our members achieve legal and policy reforms and improve the rule of law.

We are not inventing for invention’s sake – we are on a quest to cure – and to have an impact on countless people’s lives worldwide.

MSD is inventing because the world still needs cures for cancer, Alzheimer’s disease, HIV, and so many other causes of widespread suffering in people and animals.

We are taking on the world’s most challenging diseases to help people go on, unburdened, to experience, create and live their best lives.
